

GROWERS TOLD
CHERRY PRICES LOWER; LOTT TO
HEAD PA. GROUP

Pennsylvania's cherry growers will receive less for cherries sold to processors this year—but from the demand made by customers so far the price on the fresh fruit market should remain about the same as last year. The growers will also turn in 60 cents a ton voluntarily to help pay the state's share of a national advertising campaign.

Those conclusions were reached Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Cherry Growers' association at Biglerville high school. Meeting at the beginning of the cherry harvest season, the growers elected William M. Lott, Gardner, R. D., as their president, named outgoing president Frederic E. Griest, Florida, as vice president, and named Oliver J. Heacock, Biglerville, R. 1, as secretary-treasurer, and then discussed the price situation with processor representatives and among themselves.

Start Processing Monday
John Peters, manager of the Adams County Fruit Growers Cooperative, who was recently named a member of the board of the National Red Cherry Institute at a meeting at Traverse City, outlined the cherry situation in regard to processing, pointing out that the growers were seeking "not a high price, but a fair price."

In general the price of cherries paid by canners will be lower than the 14-cent-a-pound basic price of last year, Peters pointed out. The growers, he said, are hoping for a 12-cent basic price while the canners are offering ten-cents.

John Hauser, president of the C. H. Musselman company, and Howard Musselman, of the Orrtanna Canning company, who last year between them canned approximately one-half of the cherries grown in the state both outlined their position in regard to price and stated they would begin to receive cherries for processing Monday.

The list includes 19 bridges in Adams, Franklin and York counties over Conewago, Codorus, West Branch of the Conococheague, Bermudian and Licking creeks and Bennis run.

RAIN AND HAIL
DAMAGE FRUIT;
500 PHONES OUT

Streets were flooded, many streams in Adams county ran bank-high, and telephone communication in Gettysburg and elsewhere in the county was disrupted following a deluge of rain which swept across the county Tuesday evening.

In the section west and northwest of Gettysburg, which was hardest hit, hail also fell, damaging fruit. Power was off and Arendtsville was without lights for three hours during and after the storm.

The rainstorm was preceded by a high wind which also damaged fruit, and blew down limbs and trees in the northwest section of the county.

A large tree fell across the power lines in Arendtsville, breaking a pole. Residents of the borough turned out and cut the tree away, and repairs were made by electric company linemen.

Many Phones Out

In Gettysburg, between 400 and 500 telephones were out of order Tuesday night, the United Telephone company said. Nearly all the services had been restored today, however. Water getting into the telephone cables was blamed by telephone company officials for the trouble.

At Biglerville, 50 to 100 telephones were out, also due principally to cable trouble, company officials said.

Hail also fell in the Narrows, and the windstorm reached a high velocity in this section and in and around Arendtsville. There were no reports of roofs being blown off, but shutters were ripped from windows, awnings torn, and corn leveled in the fields.

The Metropolitan Edison company said today it had trouble with its lines in this section, and at Table Rock, Greenmount and on the Hanover road, both from the wind and the electrical storm which accompanied the wind and rain. Lightning blew out numerous transformer fuses, and company employees worked until after 3 o'clock this morning restoring services.

Rebel Who Shot Reynolds Helped Sharpen Tools To Carve General's Monument

The Confederate soldier who killed General Reynolds during the first day's fighting in the battle of Gettysburg on July 1, 1863, lived to help sharpen the tools which were used in carving a monument to Reynolds, according to an article published in the "E.S.C. Quarterly," the magazine of the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina.

"The state of Pennsylvania, during the years after the War between the States, decided to erect a monument to its illustrious sons, and gave the contract to the owners of the Mount Airy, N. C. granite quarry for the stone, the Ionic columns and the heroic statues of the citizens it was to honor," says the magazine article.

"The material was produced, and the monument was erected at Gettysburg, commemorating that famous battle and rising high above the battlefield," it continues. A picture of the Pennsylvania memorial was published with the article. Continuing, it says:

"When most of the figures of noted Pennsylvania men had been completed or were nearing completion, a resident of Pennsylvania came to North Carolina on other matters. He knew of the plans for the monument and visited the quarry more than once. Taking others to see the work, he pointed out the various distinguished men represented. He pointed to one statue, explaining that it was General Reynolds, of Pennsylvania, and that he had been killed in the Battle of Gettysburg."

"I think it is entirely appropriate," spoke up one of his guests, "for Pennsylvania to have this work done in North Carolina, in Surry county and here at Mount Airy. For it was," he continued, "a Surry county and

"This supplement, so splendidly done, is a great credit to The Gettysburg Times. However, there was an unfortunate oversight, though accidental no doubt, when in referring to the surgical staff, there was no mention of Dr. J. McCrea Dickson as the first and for many years the only surgeon of that institution.

Consistent Service
"For 17 years he was chief surgeon, and not for many years did he have an assistant."

"A man can give no more than his life for any cause and Dr. Dickson gave his life."

"It was his love and devotion, his conscientious service to his patients, day and night over the years, that broke his health. Because his very life was dedicated to his work as a doctor and surgeon he broke under the strain, all too young for one so gifted."

"Dr. J. McCrea Dickson was an outstanding man of honor and integrity. To know him was to love him. Because of that love and admiration I feel impelled to pay his memory this small tribute, knowing that I speak for all those others who came under his kindly and able ministrations during the many years of his magnificent services at the Annie Warner hospital."

"A Friend."

Splendid Tribute
The Times welcomes the opportunity to publish the following splendid tribute to the late Doctor Dickson:

"Last Friday's issue of The Gettysburg Times carried a large supplement complete with many fine photographs of the Annie M. Warner hospital from its very inception in the heart of Mr. John Warner to its present day magnificence with

TO HOLD SOME PRISONERS IN JAIL OVERNIGHT

The Adams county commissioners this morning passed a "temporary resolution" permitting the sheriff to keep prisoners in the Adams county jail overnight if necessary.

At the same time, to avoid such necessity as far as possible, the commissioners asked the sheriff to arrange for a meeting with the local justices of the peace, Gettysburg's burgess and chief of police and the head of the state police station here when the cooperation of all will be sought to provide the speediest possible hearings for all persons taken into custody.

Sheriff John E. Millhimes set Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in the office of Borough Solicitor Eugene V. Bullett as the time and place for the meeting and he and Deputy Sheriff Blaine E. Bixler were contacting the officials today to see if they can attend the meeting.

Special Night Guard

The commissioners in passing the resolution directed that a special guard should be employed to keep constant watch at night and remove prisoners in event of fire or other necessity. Sheriff Millhimes pointed out that the greatest danger at the jail is from fire. The commissioners also recommended that the cell doors be left open and that only the steel barred door at the end of the corridor of the jail block be kept locked. In event a potentially dangerous prisoner is brought to the jail he should be removed immediately to Harrisburg no matter what time of the day or night he might be brought in, the commissioners said.

CONFESSES TO BARREL MURDER

Philadelphia, July 2 (AP)—A 22-year-old ex-sailor admitted in a signed statement he strangled a 50-year-old woman, kept her body in a closet of his room for several days and then abandoned it in a sawdust-filled barrel, Captain James A. Kelly of the homicide squad reported.

Arrested on an anonymous tip and charged with homicide, William A. Wagner last night confessed the slaying of Margaret C. Dougherty, Kelly said.

In his statement, Kelly said, Wagner told how he beat and strangled the unmarried bookkeeper after a violent argument in a third-floor room of a boarding house.

The woman's body was found on a vacant north Philadelphia lot June 2. It was identified only three days ago through the aid of an orthopedic shoe she wore.

Wagner said in his confession he "thought" the slaying took place about May 1—a month before discovery of the body—and that he kept the body in a closet for several days until neighbors began complaining of the odor.

Kelly said Wagner hired two men to help haul the barrel in a child's express wagon 26 city blocks to the ravine in which it was dumped.

WIFE HELD FOR KNIFING SPOUSE

Reading, Pa., July 2 (AP)—The 54-year-old mother of seven children confessed slaying her unemployed husband with a butcher knife, Assistant District Attorney Fred I. Noch reported.

The woman, Mrs. Josephine DeAngelo, was quoted by Noch as saying she killed 61-year-old Nicholas DeAngelo last night after a quarrel. "I find knife and I stick it in," Noch quoted the woman. The Berks county official said Mrs. DeAngelo would be charged with murder.

Noch said the woman blamed the slaying on a family quarrel. "I told my husband I worked hard for the house and wouldn't leave like he asked me," Noch quoted Mrs. DeAngelo.

Noch said the quarrel began after DeAngelo told his wife he had an argument with her 89-year-old mother and wanted both women to leave the house.

Referring to the killing, Noch quoted Mrs. DeAngelo as saying "I am sorry in one way because it is against the laws of God but I am not sorry in another because he made me suffer too much."

Noch said the couple's 17-year-old daughter, Carmella, witnessed the fatal stabbing.

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Philadelphia, July 2 (P)—Del Ennis, Major league baseball's 1945 "rookie of the year," today is more concerned with licking the "sophomore jinx" than consecutive game hitting streaks.

Ennis, hard-hitting outfielder for the National league's Philadelphia Phillies, went hitless yesterday against the Brooklyn Dodgers—stopping his streak at 19 games, longest of the season for any player in the big leagues.

"It's nice to get a hit every day," Ennis told a reporter, "but I'll settle for a couple every few days. That'll keep the second year hex away."

It seems to be an unwritten law among baseball people that if a player has a good season as a rookie he'll be a flop the second year.

The 22-year-old-Ennis, normally a slow starter, was hampered by injuries this spring but found his hitting eye early in June. He thumped a safety in 14 consecutive contests before a knee injury sidelined him for two weeks.

On rejoining the Blue Jays, Ennis continued to pound the ball consistently raising his average above the .300 mark. Yesterday, however, the Dodgers' Joe Hatten and Clyde King silenced the Ennis war club.

"I've got my eye on the ball now," Del says, "and as long as I don't see too much of that fellow (Ewell) Blackwell (of the Cincinnati Reds) the hits should come my way."

"Black's the top pitcher in the National league," Ennis declares, voicing particular respect for Blackwell's side arm sinker ball.

And speaking of pitchers, Ennis insists that's the Phillies "biggest trouble."

"We have the defense and the power but none of our pitchers outside of Schoolboy Rowe and Dutch Leonard seem to be able to stop the other club's attack," Ennis says. "When we get the pitching we'll prove the Phils are better than the seventh place record indicates."

Auto Thrill Show At Williams Grove

Williams Grove, Pa., July 2—The driver who wins the honor to perform the death-defying dive bomber stunt in Jole Chittwood's Auto Thrill and Stunt Show in both the afternoon and evening performances scheduled for a special July Fourth attraction on Roy Richwine's Williams Grove Speedway on Friday will not be decided until time for the show.

Despite the fact that the dive bomber stunt is considered the most hazardous to perform in a show full of dangerous stunting, the Cherokee Indian and three other members of his troupe always hopes to win the honor to drive in the dive bomber stunt.

"Wild" Bill Holland, of Bridgeport, Conn., current leading driver in point standings for the 1947 National Championship title, has turned in his entry for Sunday's AAA big car auto race on the Speedway, it was announced today by Roy Richwine, owner.

Already entered is Ted Horn, of Paterson, N. J., AAA National champion for 1946, and Jole Chittwood, of Reading, winner of the feature race on the "Ascot of the East" several weeks ago, who is staying over for the race after presenting his auto thrill and stunt show on the speedway Friday.

Harrisburg Beats Last-Place Sunbury

(By The Associated Press)

Harrisburg trounced last place Sunbury, 7-2, last night while Allentown's scheduled game at Lancaster was washed out.

Trenton strengthened its hold on third place—going one half game ahead of idle Hagerstown—by whipping Wilmington, 4-1. The Hagerstown-York contest was postponed because of rain.

GIANTS MENACE LEAGUE RECORD FOR HOME RUNS

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
You simply had to see it to believe it.

It was a case of mayhem on the diamond. New York fans, even those with long memories, will tell you that there never was another National league team that packed the punch these Giants of 1947 do.

And if you happened to be a spectator at last night's teeing off party at the polo grounds against the Boston Braves, you would be inclined to agree with them. Training their siege guns at four Boston pitchers, the relentless Giants blasted away for 16 hits including five home runs, a triple and a double to vanquish the Braves 15-3.

Bobby Thomson slammed a home run. Buddy Kerr hit one. And of course, the thumping trio of Johnny Mize, Willard Marshall and Walker Cooper hit one apiece. Thomson also connected for a three-bagger.

Still In Third

Despite the victory, the Giants remained in third place, but they cut the Braves first place margin to a mere half game. Boston retained its first place hold over the Brooklyn Dodgers by two percentage points. The Brooks lost an opportunity to take over the league lead when they blew a 5-3 game to the Phils in Philadelphia earlier in the day.

In the only other National league game, the steadily rising St. Louis Cardinals moved within three and a half games of the top by winning a close 2-1 game from the Pirates at night in Pittsburgh. The Cards increased their fourth place lead over the idle Chicago Cubs to a full game.

Detroit took sole possession of third place in the American league by nipping the White Sox in Chicago 2-1. The Tigers now are a half game in front of Philadelphia and Cleveland who are tied for fourth. The Indians moved in on the A's when they defeated the Browns in a night game at St. Louis 9-3.

Feller Injured

The Indians' victory over the Browns was beclouded by an injury to their great pitching star, Bobby Feller. The fireball ace was forced to withdraw in the second inning with severe back pains. After leaving the game in which he fanned three in one and one-third innings, Feller said he felt aches in the right side of his back while warming up, but decided to start.

Feller expressed belief that a strain was caused by favoring his left knee, which was injured in a fall off the mound in Philadelphia, June 13.

CLEVELAND ACE MAY MISS GAME

Cleveland, July 2 (P)—Rapid Robert Feller, Cleveland Indians' Fireball ace, was scheduled to undergo X-ray examinations by local physicians today to determine whether he will be able to perform in baseball's all-star game at Chicago next Tuesday.

Feller's participation in the diamond classic became doubtful last night when the Fireballer was forced to withdraw during the second inning of the Tribe's 9-3 victory over the St. Louis Browns at the mound city because of severe back pains.

Tribe Manager Lou Boudreau asserted he believed Feller would not be ready for pitching duty until July 10—two days after the Chicago all-star tilt.

The major leagues' strikeout king said he first felt a sharp pain in the right side of his back last night while warming up for the game with St. Louis, but decided to start the contest.

Fair Will Feature Baseball, Football

Pittsburgh, July 2 (P)—The Allegheny county fair will feature baseball and football on its Sunday, August 31, program despite a protest from the Sabbath Association of Western Pennsylvania against "commercialization of a day regarded as sacred."

The day's program that day will also include a religious radio program and a World War II memorial service, as well as an army air show and a big musical pageant.

Allegheny county commissioners had delayed announcement of plans while they studied a protest from the Rev. Michael M. Blackwood, secretary of the Sabbath association.

Phillies Purchase Former Navy Player

Philadelphia, July 2 (P)—The Philadelphia Phillies continue to stock their farm system with promising young ball players.

The latest addition to the system is 20-year-old Bill Scull, of Bridgeport, N. J., a second baseman who has been playing with the U. S. Naval reserve team.

Young Scull was a member of the Navy All-Stars who played at Guam against the pick of the Pacific fleet. General Manager Herb Pennock did not reveal where Scull will be assigned in the farm system.

MACK SAYS A'S NOT FOR SALE

Meriden, Conn., July 2 (P)—Connie Mack has no intention of retiring from baseball "until I feel that I'm no longer a help to the team," and there isn't enough money in the world to buy his beloved Philadelphia Athletics of the American league.

The tall, sparse owner-manager of the Athletics made those two points clear last night during a broadcast which was a part of Connie Mack Day ceremonies in this city where Mack, in 1884, made his debut in professional baseball.

Asked about reports that Hank Greenberg, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, had attempted to purchase the team, Mack said that Greenberg had not made him an offer.

"But if he did, my answer would be the same. The Philadelphia Athletics are not for sale."

Yesterdays Stars

Pitching, Alton Benton, Tigers—limited the White Sox to three hits in pitching the Tigers to a 2-1 victory for his fifth triumph of the season.

Batting, Billy Rigney, Giants—with his father and sister coming all the way from Oakland, Calif., to see him perform, the bespectacled second baseman rapped out four hits in five times at bat as the Giants shellacked the Braves 15-3.

Today's Talk

THE GOSPEL OF EARTH

Earth is our Mother, and from her breast are we fed. Her smile is that from every blade of grass, from every flower, every leaf, and from every ripple that trots the stream. Her voice is that of the wind, the bird, and every swaying branch. And her spirit is the hunger of our heart. The gospel of Earth is the gospel of beauty, and there is unity in all her realm.

There is no poverty in Nature. Hers is an empire of wealth, with free gifts on every hand. Her life is one of radiation, in all directions, in all seasons, and to all peoples who would but love and appreciate. There is eloquence to every expression that she creates. Her language is simple and joyous, and there is color, in perfect blends, wherever the eye may rest.

The power behind this gospel of Earth is limitless—if we will but surrender to it, and trust its urge. It's there in farms, in roads, streams, mountains, and forests. It's in the spontaneous song of the bird, in the honest look of man's best friend, the dog. It's in the healing fragrance of the air. It's wherever the Sun's rays touch to give life and hope.

The Earth is God's apothecary shop, where every healing medicine exists for the restoration of every sick mind, body, and soul. Little do we realize the advantage that is ours. Said Shakespeare:

"The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, But in ourselves, that we are underlings."

It would lean upon anyone, or anything, let us lean upon Nature, and trust to her revelations, be admonished by her wisdom, and take heart from her never-ending refreshment of spirit. Never does she idle. Hers is a life of movement. There is eternity in her every breath.

How full of medicine and healing is the very silence of the Earth—at early morn, or at dead of night! But we must have the right thoughts to meld with this silence, to gain its healing power.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Sleep"

BOY TRAGEDY
When the little fellow's playing, say at second, third or short, And he's fielding his position as a good sandlotter ought, It is most humiliating to have mother at the door Shouting: "Willie, come this minute! I need something from the store."

When you see the bases loaded and your boy is up to bat, Never, never, do mother, pull a shabby trick like that. He will bitterly remember through the years that lie ahead, That you chose that time to call him just to get a loaf of bread.

Oh, I sometimes have to wonder will a mother ever learn That a ball game to a youngster is a matter of concern. And it sorely wounds his spirit, when he's fighting for his team. To be taken from the line-up just to get a pint of cream.

TRUMAN'S BLAST AT LOBBYISTS GETS REACTION

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Truman's plea that Congress investigate what he called the "brazen operations of real estate lobbyists" today generated a broadside of clashing reaction with political overtones.

The Chief Executive made his appeal in assailing the rent control extension bill which he signed reluctantly because of provisions permitting 15 per cent increases and junking nearly all construction controls.

Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) denounced Mr. Truman's lobby inquiry proposal as "the cheapest kind of political demagoguery."

Taft Would Like Job
But Senator Taft, Bricker's Ohio colleague and—like Bricker—widely mentioned as an aspirant for the Republican Presidential nomination, told reporters in commenting on the President's call for a full investigation:

"I wouldn't mind doing that myself."

Taft is one of the authors of pending legislation to set up a long range housing program which Mr. Truman commended and which Bricker condemns.

Arthur W. Binns, head of the National Home and Property Owners foundation, said his group would welcome an investigation.

Lashes Out At Lobby
"Nothing would please us more," Binns asserted, "than to have the truth spread upon the record and the American people realize the damage that has been done to them by destructive legislation and administration and false economics."

In his rent message Monday, Mr. Truman said the real estate lobby has "constantly sought to weaken rent control and to do away with necessary aids to housing."

In lashing out at the provision which authorizes rent increases up to 15 per cent when tenant and landlord agree to a lease running through 1948, Mr. Truman contended this is "voluntary only so far as the landlord is concerned."

The tenant, he added, "naturally will fear that unless he enters into such a lease he will be subjected to even more exorbitant increases when rent control is ended" March 1.

Housing expediter Frank R. Creedon, who will administer the new rent control law, said in a statement that "both tenants and landlords are afforded protection under the terms of the act."

BILL OUTLAWING UTILITY STRIKES SIGNED BY DUFF

Harrisburg, July 2 (AP)—Governor James H. Duff signed into law Tues. an administration bill virtually outlawing strikes in essential public utilities in Pennsylvania.

The governor also signed another administration labor bill banning picketing of a struck plant by non-employees.

They set no effective date and automatically will go into effect September 1.

The public utility labor bill requires compulsory arbitration of a labor dispute should the governor determine that a strike would inflict "severe hardship" on a substantial number of persons.

Should collective bargaining negotiations between a union and a utility break down, either side or the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board could petition the governor to name a mediator and if mediation failed at the end of 30 days, compulsory arbitration machinery would come into play.

How It Works

Once the dispute had been turned over to the Gov. for mediation and arbitration, strikes or lockouts would be banned during the period of arbitration and the effective period of any order issued unless the governor should decide failure to settle the dispute would cause "no severe hardship."

The arbitration board appointed by the governor would be required to step in, if the employees affected at a secret election rejected the final offer of the company, or if the employer refused the union's final proposals.

All arbitration would be based on the final offers, with the board required to hold hearings, issue findings of fact, render a decision and issue an order. Unless either side appeared to the courts and won a stay, the order would go into effect and violation of it or other provisions of the law would subject unions or employees to $500 to $2,500 fines or six months in jail or both.

and Donald. The guest of honor received many gifts.

NEW PLOT IN FRANCE BLOW TO RUSSIANS

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

French Minister of the Interior, Eduard Depreux's announcement of a Black Maquis plot—to overthrow the republic and establish a military dictatorship—is couched in such guarded terms that it leaves much to the imagination, though the statement is in all conscience grave enough on the face of it.

The political situation in France is highly complicated, and in order to find the real significance of this ugly revolutionary scheme we must consider it in its relation to the entire picture rather than separately. When we do that we shall find, I believe, that the most important aspect of the plot is that it's another of those phenomena which indicate France is swinging back toward the right after a steep leftist nose-dive.

Why A Dictatorship

M. Depreux tells us that the Black Maquis comprises right wing resistance leaders, monarchists and Vichy collaborationists. Why should they want to establish a dictatorship?

Well, it strikes me we don't have to look far for their main answer. They have been dissatisfied with the country's leftist swing which for a time permitted the Communists to gain such power that the outside world wondered whether France was about to become a part of the Russian sphere of influence. In addition to the political disabilities, the nation has been struggling in an economic morass. Some extreme rightists have felt that a dictatorship would eliminate political confusion and also permit more efficient handling of the economic problems.

So much for the Maquis. We can leave them to the French government which, M. Depreux informs us, intends to push its investigation "to its final conclusion, no matter how important a personage is found to be involved."

Oust Many Reds

As a matter of fact another phenomenon has developed during the past few weeks which has bid fair to take care of the Communists threat without need of recourse to strong arm methods of revolutionaries. A couple of months ago France's mild-mannered Socialist Premier Ramadier surprised the world with a sensational revolt against the powerful Communist party which held important ministries in the coalition government.

Early in May Ramadier laid down a policy of freeing wages in the interest of helping stabilize the French economic structure. The Communists opposed him, and when Ramadier called for a vote of confidence over this important issue in the general assembly the Communists refused to join in granting it. They felt secure in their great strength and virtually invited Ramadier to challenge them further.

freight haulers remained stalemated, the union asking a 17 1/2 cent hourly raise, the company offering 12 1/2 cents.

Interesting News Of Upper Adams Countians And Their Enterprises

1,206 Pupils To Enroll This Fall In Schools Of New Joint School District

Twelve hundred and six elementary and high school youngsters will be attending school in the Upper Adams County Joint School District this fall, the census completed by the secretaries of the six districts involved disclosed today.

Leslie V. Stock, supervising principal of the joint district said that 666 elementary students, including 98 first graders, and 600 high school students are planning to attend the various schools in the district.

The problem of how to transport the students to the various centers and schools is being worked out by a transportation committee made up of school board members from the six districts under the chairmanship of Luther Lady, Butler township.

Plan "Special Education" Unit
Meeting Monday evening at Biglerville, the committee went over the pupil distribution in the townships and is now engaged in studying how to meet the needs for transportation with the minimum number of buses and the least "long hauls" for the youngsters. The group tentatively plans to meet again next Wednesday to complete its work if possible and arrange to let bus contracts.

Meantime the finance committee of the joint board is studying the budget to decide proper distribution.

Present studies indicate the special class of 18 students taught by a special teacher will be placed at Arendtsville, Principal Stock said. The special class is designed to provide opportunities for students who need education out of the regular courses. The class will be one of the first of its kind to be established in this section and if successful this year will probably lead to establishment of similar classes as needed.

ment of a number of similar classes as needed.

Arranging for Cafeteria

Plans are also well underway to establish a modern cafeteria for the elementary students at the Arendtsville center, Stock said. And if possible a cafeteria will be established at Biglerville this year.

It is believed that federal funds will be available for the Arendtsville school where last year a school lunch program was carried out, Stock said, but at present the cafeteria seems extremely probable. Plans call for establishment of a cafeteria at Biglerville, eventually, if not this year, he added.

Members of the school boards in the jointure are considering a plan at present to hold the meetings of all boards on the same night and possibly the same place, so that the full board will be present if needed. At present the boards meet on various nights at various places within their own districts.

The executive committee of the joint board will meet July 11 at Biglerville.

Harrisburg, July 2 (P)—Gov. James H. Duff signed into law Tuesday a new $2 a year license fee for the handling of oleomargarine by Pennsylvania manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

Assigns Police To Highways For 4th

Harrisburg, July 2 (P)—Col. C. M. Wilhelm, Pennsylvania state police commissioner, announced Tuesday "all available state police will be assigned to highway duty" over the Fourth of July holiday.

Declaring that the greatest danger of death on rural roads will be before and after July 4, the commissioner said the statistics show four persons were killed July 3, 1946, one on the fourth and another on the fifth, two on the sixth and three on the seventh.

"These figures speak for themselves and should serve as a grim reminder to take it easy if you want to be alive on Monday. Every driver and pedestrian must do his share," Wilhelm stated.

There are 5,725,000 motor trucks registered in the United States.

FISH STORY

New Haven, Conn., July 2 (P)—State Rep. Irving Horowitz buys his fish bait in fruit stores.

A year ago he jokingly told a nephew to put a chunk of orange peel on his hook. The nephew did and caught two fish.

Horowitz says he now carries half a dozen oranges for refreshment and bait when he goes fishing, and rarely comes home empty handed.

The orchid family numbers some 400 plant kinds and species estimated between 5,000 to 15,000.

News Of Interest To Upper Communities Of County

FARM SAFETY EMPHASIS IS ASKED BY HORST

State Secretary of Agriculture Miles Horst, who is serving again this year as state chairman for Pennsylvania observance of National Farm Safety Week, today called upon all agricultural organizations to emphasize safety talks and discussions at meetings during or prior to the week of July 20 to 26, dates set for the 1947 event.

Declaring there was an increase last year in deaths from farm accidents over the nation, Secretary Horst urged greater attention to prevention of accidents and removal of hazards as the busy season gets under way on Pennsylvania farms. Most of the increase came through accidents experienced by farm people in highway traffic, he added.

"More fatal accidents occur in agriculture than in any other occupation," the Secretary declared. "In Pennsylvania it is estimated that between 7,000 and 8,000 accidents take place on farms each year, and approximately one per cent of these prove fatal."

Farm Rate High

"For the country as a whole, agriculture, with more workers than any other industry, in 1946, had a death rate of 54 per thousand workers as compared with an all-industry rate of 31. Deaths from farm home accidents remained unchanged at 6,500, with approximately one million non-fatal injuries. Motor vehicle fatalities rose from 5,500 in 1945, to 7,000, an increase of 27 per cent compared with 18 per cent for all other occupational groups. Farm work deaths from accidents totaled 4,500, the same as the previous year."

"The lesson to be drawn from such reports is the need for greater care on the part of all farm workers, particularly on the highways. The increased complexity of farm machinery and operations create additional hazards. Proper training of new and inexperienced farm hands is desirable on the part of all farm operators. Farm safety demonstrations and discussions at meetings of farm groups provide an excellent means for making farm workers safety-conscious. Fewer accidents and less time lost from work will result."

Kill Weeds Quickly—Unless the farmer wants to spend years fighting weeds, he should kill all new weeds as soon as they appear. J. B. R. Dickey, extension agronomist of the Pennsylvania State college, points to the large patches of weeds in some fields as evidence of what happens where a few weeds, which could have been pulled, were allowed to go to seed.

Check the Binder—A few minutes spent in checking the binder now may save hours after it goes into the field. C. G. Burress, extension agricultural engineer of the Pennsylvania State college, suggests repairing where needed, cleaning the tying apparatus, and giving all moving parts a thorough lubrication.

Can Save Berry Patch—An intensive cultural program can be used to prepare the strawberry patch for a second crop next year, reminds C. S. Bittner, extension fruit specialist of the Pennsylvania State college. He reports that Extension Circular 290, available at county agents' offices, gives full information on strawberry growing.

Pick Quality Peas—Watch the peas carefully and pick them when at just the right stage for high edible quality, urges J. O. Dutt, extension vegetable specialist of the Pennsylvania State college.

Cut Lodged Wheat—To prevent smothering of clover and alfalfa seedlings, lodged wheat should be cut for hay or silage, says J. B. R. Dickey, Penn State extension agronomist.

of dead blooms is enough pruning for overblooming climbing roses, according to A. O. Rasmussen, extension ornamental horticulturist.

Keep Production Records—Asserting that "the quality and quantity of milk each cow produces are the only reliable guides to the amount of feed required," C. R. Gearhart, extension dairy specialist of the Pennsylvania State college, urges the keeping of production records to de-pany, said he checked a number of leading canners Tuesday in other states. One Michigan processor, he said, plans to pay eight cents a pound, another Michigan canner will pay nine cents a pound, while others, in New York and other states will pay 10 cents a pound.

H. L. Shank, Lancaster cherry grower, whose crop was harvested and sold last week, reported that "I termine ration needs for economical production. Overfeeding of grain is wasteful, and underfeeding is poor economy."

Keep Up With Tractor—Since tractors, like any other machine in hard use, may need occasional overhauling, Charles G. Burress, extension agricultural engineer of the Pennsylvania State college, suggests periodic check-ups to spot any possible trouble before it develops.

Train Eye and Hand—Instruction provided by the Agricultural Extension Service for farm boys and girls learning to judge livestock "trains the eye and the hand" to pick out the prize-winning qualities in the animals, explains Allen L. Baker, state club leader of the Pennsylvania State college.

Cut Peonies Lightly—When cutting peony blooms, leave some of the foliage on the base of the stalk, and cut only a few blooms from each plant to keep them in vigorous condition, advises A. O. Rasmussen, Penn State extension ornamental horticulturist.

Spray Cows With DDT—One application of DDT spray, made from one-half pound of 50 per cent wettable powder to 25 gallons of water, will protect cows from flies for two to three weeks, informs E. J. Udine, extension entomologist of the Pennsylvania State college.

extremely high prices toward the end of the season, some as high as 20 cents a pound. As a result the price of processed cherries reached an all-time high and the public stopped buying. Up to February 1 there was a tremendous carry-over of the cherry crop and brokers then were predicting they would be able to buy this year's crop at 5 cents a pound. However the distributors took their loss, sold at a lower price than what they bought at and as a result the cherry situation is much improved. But the distributors after taking a tremendous financial loss in disposing of the product are opposed to high prices this year.

"However the cherry and all other food products are in smaller quantity this year than last and not as many people will be able to buy cherries this year as did last year because of the small crop. So the price should remain relatively high."

"We are in a different situation in cherry from any other crop. In apples we have many outlets. In cherries 95 per cent of all sour cherries in the U. S. go to the processor. The growers think of cherries as a crop which is harvested and marketed within a month."

But the people of the U. S. do not buy 200,000,000 pounds of cherries in one month, but buy them over a period of a year. Thus the canners act as financiers, they sell the crop over a year's period, so they have to take a chance that the grower does not have to take. We must help the processor to get that crop on the market and we must help him to better that market so we may all get better prices."

Howard Musselman told the group that "disposal of cherries to a large extent means supplying the baking trade. When the price of cherries goes too high the bakers make custards instead of cherry pies and the supply backs up on the distributors. That happened last year and the distributors who lost up to $8 a unit on cherries are not willing to take a chance like that again."

Peaches are selling at one-half what we would like for cherries, so that in itself will cause a drop in our price.

On National Council

"Even at a 10-cent price we are approaching the margin where we make no profit at all, and while we like to help the growers, we are not quite altruistic enough to subsidize them."

A review of the crop situation revealed that some growers are picking earlier cherries now and many growers plan to begin picking Monday. All agreed cherries are larger this year than last and most reported their crop looked better now than it did a month ago.

M. T. Hartman, county farm agent, reported the cherry leaf spot situation as serious. John Wilson reported on the meeting of the National Red Cherry Institute at Traverse City at which J. Willis Beldler, of the Musselman company, of Biglerville, and John Peters were appointed to a 30-man national advisory council. Peters was one of eight men elected from the 30 to be a member of the board.

returns to Gettysburg July 5.

"Let's make Independence Day

independent of traffic accidents

by taking it easy, driving or walking."

This is the appeal from the Gettysburg Motor club, affiliated with the American Automobile association, on the eve of what will be one of the greatest Fourth of July week-ends for travelers in the nation's history.

Because the Fourth falls on a Friday, many motorists will start their holiday on Thursday afternoon or evening, and wind up their trip Monday morning,

July 7. The tremendous volume of inquiries regarding travel, which automobile clubs all over the country are reporting receiving is indicative of the fact that the highways will be crowded with cars. The majority of these cars are far from new, and travelers are urged to follow these suggestions while driving over the Independence Day weekend:

Check the condition of your car before planning on a vacation or week-end trip. Have the battery, tires, brakes, wheel

alignment and ignition carefully inspected before venturing on an extensive tour with the family.

Make an early start; delays will bring you into crowded streets and highways with the temptation to try to make up time on the open road by excessive speed.

Don't weave in and out of traffic. Too many careless drivers will be doing just that thing in the hope of saving a minute or two.

If you are hunting lodgings

for the night, having made no advance reservations, start early in the afternoon. Accommodations secured at the last minute too often prove inadequate or unsatisfactory for a number of reasons; often they cannot be had.

Make your Independence Day

holiday independent of accl-idents.

Chapter 6

While she waited for her luggage, Susan went over to sit in an easy-chair by a window. She would just sit there for a few blissful moments, enjoying the peace and quiet of the beautiful room and the enchanting view which lay spread out before her through the big French windows. The windows overlooked a rose garden, so carefully tended that it looked as if it had never known summer heat. Beyond a stretch of white beach lay the blue waters of Long Island Sound, shimmering in the afternoon sunlight.

Presently, Mr. Elton, a dour-faced man who spoke mainly in unintelligible grunts, brought her luggage. She thanked him, adding by way of conversation, and feeling a little foolish as she did so:

"It's a heavenly day. I've just been looking out at the Sound. It looks so peaceful and calm."

"Yep," he grunted. "The tide's out. But don't let it fool you—the day, I mean," he added ominously. "There's rain in the air. I can smell it."

"All right. Let it rain and see who cares. I'm certain I don't." Without bothering to look at herself in the long panel mirror, she went downstairs, hurried through the awesome rooms, and out onto the terrace. To her dismay, she almost ran headlong into Steve Gellis, who was just getting out of a cab.

"Hello, Susie. Everything okay?" "No—er—yes. Everything's fine—just fine," she lied, hoping she sounded convincing.

They went into the house together, and back to the kitchen, where Susan was a little surprised to hear both Mr. and Mrs. Elton greet him in a manner which was decidedly cordial.

Suddenly it occurred to Susan that she did not yet know who the prize-winners were.

As if sensing her thoughts, Gellis reached into his coat pocket and drew out a folded typewritten sheet, which he handed to Susan.

"I suppose you'd like to know the names of your guests," he said. Then he went on listening to Mrs. Elton, who was telling him about the station wagon and other transportation facilities.

Susan glanced at the list of names on the typewritten page. Only two of them looked familiar to her.

She was pretty sure that J. Howard Craston, of Lincoln, Nebraska, was "Bewildered," the man who had almost talked himself out of marriage into the divorce courts.

She was sure, very sure, that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaines, of Cordelle, Georgia, were "Bella," the ex-lonely-heart, and her bridegroom. Susan was glad that Bella had won. Bella had been such a faithful correspondent—almost too faithful, at times.

She looked up quickly, suddenly conscious of a tenseness in the room. One glance told her that things were not going any too well now. Engrossed in her own thoughts, she had stopped listening to the conversation between Mrs. Elton and Steve.

Steve was no longer master of all he surveyed—that was quite clear. He was sitting on a high kitchen stool, looking not unlike a small boy who has been caught in some misdemeanor. Mrs. Elton stood back of the kitchen table, her eyes flashing, her back stiff and straight.

Streamliner Leaves
Rails; 56 Injured

Chicago, July 2 (AP)—Fifty-six per Monday night when the Baltimore and Ohio's streamliner, the Columbian, bound from Chicago to Washington, hit an open switch traveling 78-miles-an-hour.

Eight of the train's nine cars left the tracks but none overturned. The diesel locomotive and the car directly behind it remained on the rails.

About 180 persons were aboard the

"We'll do what we're paid for, Mr. Gellis," Mrs. Elton was saying. "No more, no less. If you need extra help, you can hire it—that is, if you can find it, which you can't."

"But where are the rest of the servants?" Steve asked.

"There are none. We expected this house to stay closed until Mr. Alan got back. There's one thing you might as well know right now, Mr. Gellis. Mr. Elton and I will NOT be responsible!"

"No—er—no, of course not. I'll see that everything is taken care of."

There was the sound of a car on the driveway, a murmur of voices. Mr. Elton heaved himself out of his chair, went to the window, and looked out. He stood there a moment, then whirled around.

"When did you say those folks were arriving, Mr. Gellis?" "You heard me." The words were like the crack of a whip. "I said very plainly they'd be here tomorrow afternoon."

Mr. Elton scratched his head and his lips parted in a peculiarly smug grin. "Maybe so," he said. "But there's a big woman and a little squirt of
